2.3.3:- Ratio of Mentor to students for academic and other related issues

Mentoring System

A faculty mentor is assigned to a group of 20-25 students to address their concerns. The assigned faculty mentor is also known as “Syndicates”. The mentor keeps a record of the students using an appropriate data collection form. Regular meetings are held to monitor each student's overall development, and counseling is provided when needed. If students encounter teaching-related issues, discussions are held with the relevant faculty. For other concerns, the mentor consults with the appropriate department. The mentor also assesses the learning capabilities of their mentees and recommends necessary actions such as skill development programs, career counseling sessions with professionals, and preparation for various entrance exams. The syndicates of faculties leaving the institute in mid-session are transferred to other faculty.

Importance of mentoring system

The mentoring system fosters an environment where teachers, students, and parents can engage in regular interaction. It allows for corrective actions to be taken when improvements are needed to enhance a student's academic performance. This system also provides detailed information about students, including personal details and achievements. Mentors meet with their mentees every two weeks to monitor their progress and activities. Additionally, mentees receive guidance from their mentors on issues related to personal and college life, and meetings with parents are held periodically as needed. The mentors also ensure the weekly attendance monitoring of students by sending letters, messages and call to their parents.
